Define the Problem Statements

Customer Problem Statement:

Many college students preparing for exams often face the challenge of quickly grasping lengthy and complex academic content. They aim to revise and understand topics efficiently, but the material they encounter is often too dense and time-consuming to go through manually. This issue is further intensified by the limited time available for revision, especially during exam season. As a result, students feel overwhelmed and anxious, struggling to find effective tools that can simplify their learning process and boost their confidence before exams.
